

BMus Scholarship Terms and Conditions 2021/22

The BMus awards, offered as The Ace Scholarship (Guitar), The Yolanda Charles Scholarship (Bass), The Cherisse Osei Scholarship (Drums) and The Vula Malinga Scholarship (Vocal), each cover the undergraduate tuition fees of a student for the entire three years of the ICMP BMus (Hons) Popular Music Performance degree.

The closing date for entries is midnight on Sunday 31 July 2022. All applicants will receive an email confirming that their application has been received and accepted. Scholarship places will be awarded on Monday 15 August 2022. Successful recipients will be contacted by email and/or phone by no later than Tuesday 16 August 2022. Unsuccessful applicants will also be notified at this time. There is no guarantee that ICMP will offer the same four scholarships each year.

Applications will be judged by a panel that will include the scholarship ambassador, ICMP academic staff and tutors, and industry professionals. The panel's decision will be final.

The scholarships will be awarded as reductions in the course tuition fees and will be automatically deducted from the first-year tuition fees of the four recipients upon enrolment, so they will not be charged tuition fees. The scholarships will not be paid as cash or attributed to other charges such as accommodation fees.

The scholarships cannot be transferred to any other student. Recipients must not defer their 2022/23 ICMP BMus study offer. If they do, their scholarship offer will be invalidated.

The scholarships will be awarded over a three-year period starting in September 2022. Scholarship recipients are expected to cover their living costs for the duration of the BMus programme, although students are entitled to apply for other bursary schemes run by ICMP, such as SLC maintenance loans.

Successful applicants must maintain continuous attendance and engagement through their degree, submitting assessments and course work in academic cycles as required and successfully progressing through the BMus degree to graduation.

Before making any changes to their course (for example: course transfer, course suspension or course withdrawal), scholarship recipients must first speak to ICMP, as these changes could invalidate their scholarship.

Any proposed interruption of studies will be considered on a case-by-case basis. If a recipient withdraws or interrupts their studies post enrolment, ICMP will discontinue their scholarship and seek repayment of any overdue payments.

By applying for an ICMP BMus scholarship, all applicants agree to share their personal details with the scholarship panel members.

Scholarship recipients will likely be contacted throughout their studies to provide testimonial information which may be used in ongoing ICMP promotions, marketing materials or recruitment activity. They may be asked to attend or speak at ICMP events or invited to act as an ambassador for the scholarship scheme. Scholarship holders may be contacted and asked to provide testimonial information about how the scholarship has impacted their career for up to two years after the conclusion of their course. Scholarship recipients can opt out of requested marketing activity by first discussing it with the ICMP scholarship panel.

ICMP reserves the right to withdraw a scholarship if these terms and conditions are not adhered to or if the scholarship recipient is subsequently found to be ineligible. ICMP also reserves the right to amend its scholarship provision without notice.
